

Aussie rock legend coming to Lennox Head

Patrons can look forward to more live music at Lennox Head Cultural Centre in November, with legendary singer-songwriter Tex Perkins and Friends performing Saturday 7 November 2020 in a COVID-safe event.

Tex Perkins' career has taken in everything from the ground-breaking experimental punktonica of Thug, to the hard-edged pub rock of the Beasts of Bourbon, to the evocative soundscapes of The Cruel Sea. Most recently he has travelled the country in the hit theatre production The Man in Black, starring as Johnny Cash.

The Tex Perkins show is thanks to a NSW Government Great Southern Nights grant. This initiative aims to stimulate the revival of live music, entertainment, hospitality and tourism during the recovery phase of COVID-19, with 1,000 events being held across NSW.

"It's a privilege to have a high calibre act coming to our theatre," said Craig Brown, Council's Manager Facilities and Services.

"It's exciting to bring live performances back to Lennox Head, and we will be staging more great events at the theatre following its reopening last month after a $2.58 million upgrade."

Although not funded through the Great Southern Nights initiative, high-energy country rock band Hurricane Fall will also grace the stage next month.

The band will play two shows on Friday 20 November and Saturday 21 November. Hailing from Newcastle, Hurricane Fall's sound is a modern but earthy fusion of their country roots and the classic rock heritage of the Steel City where they reside.

Lennox Head Cultural Centre is located at 1 Mackney Lane, Lennox Head. The centre is a licensed venue with food and beverages available for purchase. BYO not permitted.
